this volume investigates the relationship between nostalgia and contemporary social issues from history and political theory to marketing and media each chapter discusses the way nostalgia has been presented within a specific disciplinary context and shows how nostalgia as a topic of research has evolved over time this book examines the emergence of a new genre during the eighteenth century the nostalgia poem this genre is best understood by reconceiving the premises of nostalgia itself examining it as first and foremost a mode of idealization rather than a longing for the past from the poems that make up this genre we have derived many of our modern ideas and images of nostalgia in tracing the history of the nostalgia poem this book also traces a pattern of tropic change in which a new genre is built around tropes extracted from the dying genres this new genre then begins producing its own tropes in the case of the nostalgia poem these include idealized school days and ruined villages as these tropes become overly familiar the nostalgia poem genre itself begins to fall apart this book reevaluates poems ranging from dryden's hasting's elegy to crabbe's the village showing how works as varied as gray's eton college ode macpherson's forged epics and goldsmith's the deserted village are all part of a doomed literary experiment an experiment that has nevertheless determined the course of modern nostalgic thought by revealing the origins of common misunderstandings about nostalgia this book aims moreover to show that it creatively fosters a personal and imaginative memory jacket nostalgia or perversion gothic rewriting from the eighteenth century until the present day presents an interdisciplinary approach to an important aspect of gothic texts films and music that of rewriting from the eighteenth century gothic novel to present day vampire films and goth music the genre is characterised by its nostalgic reflection on past worlds narratives and identities gothic nostalgia is often accompanied by a transgressive drive resulting in perversions of the rewritten past the modern vampire is no longer embodied evil but an attractive dandy while goth subcultures reflect on victorian aesthetics but pervert them by adding fetishist elements gothic nostalgia transforms the past turning it upside down foregrounding its background and corrupting its order in this volume an international group of philosophy literature film and music scholars investigates the instrumental role of nostalgia and perversion in the gothic's rewriting of the past if elements of both nostalgia and perversion are operative in gothic rewriting how are they connected how do they play out in differing media how do they change audiencesâ€™ views on the relationships between binaries such as past and present other and self and norm and deviation nostalgia or perversion brings together the early gothic novel present day female and black gothic literature goth subculture and music and the imagery of horror films and comic books thus broadening the definition of â€˜gothicâ€™ from a literary genre to a gesture of pervasive cultural criticism the interdisciplinary analysis of nostalgia and perversion in gothic rewriting uncovers wholly new insights into the artistic and social functions of the gothic making the volume useful to both scholars and students as the essays reflect on academic as well as popular texts and media it is also accessible to general readers nostalgia or perversion provides a sophisticated analysis of how the gothic radically rewrites the past not as nostalgia but as a calculated act of transgression the past and how its reconstructions break down the boundaries between real and unreal and normal and abnormal is examined across a range of different media including novels films comic books television and music the essays in this collection also address how this issue shapes gothic formulations of race sexuality and gender both ambitious in scope and focused and rigorous in its analysis this book provides a critically important re evaluation of the gothic tradition â€” andrew smith university of glamorgan uk nostalgia a complex and multi layered emotion has gained interest since the turn of the century in both society and academic circles written by an international group of scholars this volume investigates the relationship between nostalgia and contemporary social issues from a multidisciplinary perspective from history and political theory to marketing and media each chapter discusses the way nostalgia has been presented within a disciplinary context and shows how it has evolved over time as a topic of research casting light on many recent changes in society and culture this is an important contribution to the study of nostalgia and emotions a dazzling history of a dangerous emotion by acclaimed historian agnes arnold forster absorbing the guardian illuminating vogue fascinating pandora sykes juicy nb in nostalgia historian agnes arnold forster blends neuroscience and psychology with the history of medicine and emotions to explore the evolution of nostalgia from seventeenth century switzerland when it was held to be an illness that could quite literally kill you to the present day when it is co opted by advertising agencies and politicians alike to sell us goods and policies it is a fascinating compelling story of a social and political emotion vulnerable to misuse and one that reflects the anxieties of the age it is also a clear eyed analysis of what we are doing now how we feel about it and what we might want to change about the world we live in beautifully compact wide ranging and enjoyable t/s diploma thesis from the year 2010 in the subject psychology miscellaneous grade 1 0 lmu munich institut für wirtschafts und sozialpsychologie language english abstract one of the essences of human being is that we are aware of ourselves in time we do not only look ahead either with fear or pleasant anticipation but also like to talk about the good old days nostalgia which can be regarded as a sentimental longing for the past has especially recently become an ubiquitous topic in society and media see tv shows like die 80er show and happy days however it is unclear whether nostalgia is finally rather adaptive or maladaptive since its first scientific mentioning in the 17th century nostalgia has been regarded to be a burden or even a clinical disease as it might make people ruminate about better times forlorn or get lost in the past without being able to deal with the present anymore however recently some psychologists have started suggesting that nostalgia might rather give joy to life yet the issue whether nostalgia is rather a problem or a pleasure has rarely been studied empirically so far therefore this book tries to shed some more light on the issue by reporting the results of an empirical study with a representative sample consisting of 160 german citizens in line with the historical negative conception of nostalgia and in contrast to its current positive connotation the data show that nostalgia is negatively correlated with life satisfaction theoretical implications for possible mediators between nostalgia and life satisfaction are drawn furthermore character traits of highly nostalgic people are observed we are familiar with the importance of progress and change but what about loss across the world from beijing to birmingham people are talking about loss about the loss that occurs when populations try to make new lives in new lands as well as the loss of traditions languages and landscapes the geography of nostalgia is the first study of loss as a global and local phenomenon something that occurs on many different scales and which connects many different people the geography of nostalgia explores nostalgia as a child of modernity but also as a force that exceeds and challenges modernity the book begins at a global level addressing the place of nostalgia within both global capitalism and anti capitalism in chapter two it turns to the contested role of nostalgia in debates about environmentalism and social constructionism chapter three addresses ideas of asia and india as nostalgic forms the book then turns to more particular and local landscapes the last three chapters explore the yearnings of migrants for distant homelands and the old cities and ancient forests that are threatened by modernity but which modern people see as sites of authenticity and escape the geography of nostalgia is a reader friendly text that will appeal to a variety of markets in the university sector it is a student friendly interdisciplinary text that will be welcomed across a broad range of courses including cultural geography post colonial studies landscape and planning sociology and history
