modern ethnic tension and conflict fueled by poverty and despair have led to a worldwide escalation of hostility among peoples from bosnia to rwanda to sri lanka there seems to be no end to the list of countries in conflict and the deep divisions along religious lines that become fuel for the fires ethnic conflict challenges peacemakers and in particular peacemakers in the churches the reconciliation of peoples challenge to the churches this collection of fifteen original essays reports on the efforts of church based groups to foster reconciliation between former combatants in many different contexts the opening essay by coeditor harold wells explores biblical perspectives on forgiveness reconciliation and grace the essays on particular conflicts reflect upon actual efforts and achievements by christian churches organization and individuals to bring about reconciliation among former enemies these conflicts include peoples divided the irish the koreans the rwandans burundians peoples persecuted internally by their own ruling elite the chileans the fijians peoples tragically deprived of land and home the palestinians and peoples torn apart by war the germans the poles the peoples of the balkans reconciliation in these contexts is the only way for two parties to rewrite their histories and enter upon a new path the concluding essay by coeditor gregory baum reflects theologically on the meaning and demands of reconciliation and on why it is at times so difficult for churches to take on the role of mediator this is an assessment of the social dimension to reconciliation as displayed in paul s letter to the romans traditional exegetical scholarship has treated paul s presentation of reconciliation as referring to reconciliation between people and god and has primarily focused use of the word katallage traditionally translated as atonement constantineanu challenges this view and argues that paul s understanding of the concept is more complex employing rich symbolism to describe reconciliation with god and between human beings forming together an inseparable reality the discussion is placed within paul s overall religious social and political contexts showing that an analysis of the social dimension of reconciliation in his thought is both plausible and necessary constantineanu offers an analysis of two major sections of romans chapters 5 8 and 12 15 special emphasis is placed on paul s use of the story of jesus for community formation for the shaping of identity values and community practices it is thus demonstrated that for paul god s reconciling initiative shown in the crucifixion is not only the pronouncement of god s reconciling the world but also the ground and model for reconciliation among human beings it was formerly the journal for the study of the new testament supplement a book series that explores the many aspects of new testament study including historical perspectives social scientific and literary theory and theological cultural and contextual approaches
